

9 Ways Intelligent Reporting Increases Profitability

Profits soar when users make informed decisions, complete tasks, and resolve problems fast.

Discover 9 Ways

1 Hundreds of Standard Reports

Standard reports and templates let users quickly view vital information, such as bar charts, pivot tables, and pie charts.

2 Customizable Reports without Programming

Report Designer and Generic Inquiry help users create reports, forms, and wikis without coding using smart suggestions and point and click capabilities.

3 Multi-Dimensional Reporting

Multi-Dimensional Reporting enables users to create reports that break down data by specific dimensions, such as product line, store, location, and department.

4 Scheduled and On-Demand Compliance Reporting

On-demand and real-time reporting enable users to create ad hoc and scheduled reports that demonstrate compliance to GDPR, SOC 1/SSAE 16/ISAE 3402, SOC 2, and other regulations.

5 Personalized Dashboards with Real-Time Status and KPIs

Dashboards present at-a-glance views of real-time reports and charts, including project status, tasks, and Key Performance Indicators.

6 Drill-Down Analysis Capabilities

Drill-down capabilities let users research projects and take action immediately from their home screen.

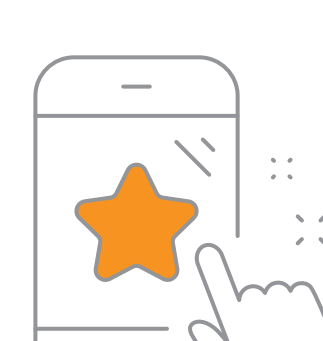

7 Action-Oriented Insights

Business intelligence tools aggregate and extract actionable data from internal and external systems to fuel strategic insights.

8 Responsive Mobile Experience

Responsive design provides the same user experience on PCs and mobile devices, allowing users to view dashboards and reports, drill down to research sources, and initiate tasks anytime, anywhere.

9 Role-Based Security

Embedded data security controls access to information based on user roles and needs.

“We have dashboards, and some (employees) have their own personal dashboards where they can look at KPIs, revenue, projects we’ve bid on. Employees are more productive because they have instant access to the information they need. They don’t have to call headquarters or waste time searching for the right information.”

– JEFF HAMILTON, PRESIDENT OF ROBERTS GLASS & SERVICE
